

Early American Studies

An Interdisciplinary Journal

VOLUME 8, NUMBER 2 (SPRING 2010)

Contents

- From the Editor v
ELAINE FORMAN CRANE
- A Historical Archaeological Study of Eighteenth-Century Newport:
Three Middling Households 213
CHRISTINA J. HODGE AND DIANA S. GALLAGHER
- Widow Pratt's World of Goods: Implications of Consumer
Choice in Colonial Newport, Rhode Island 217
CHRISTINA J. HODGE
- Parasites and Sanitation in Eighteenth-Century Newport, Rhode Island: The Pratt, Brown, and Tate Families 235
DIANA S. GALLAGHER
- Calvin and Locke: Dueling Epistemologies in *The New-England
Primer*, 1720–1790 250
STEPHANIE SCHNORBUS
- “Astrology’s from Heaven not from Hell”: The Religious
Significance of Early American Almanacs 288
T. J. TOMLIN
- “Light might possibly be requisite”: Edgar Huntly, Regional History, and Historicist Criticism 322
ANDREW NEWMAN
- “Ready to act in defiance of Government”: Colonial Philadelphia
Voluntary Culture and the Defense Association of 1747–1748 358
JESSICA CHOPPIN RONEY
- “A Flag of Defiance at the Masthead”: The Delaware River Pilots and the Sinews of Philadelphia’s Atlantic World in the Eighteenth Century 386
SIMON FINGER

“Jacobins in this Country”: The United States, Great Britain, and Trans-Atlantic Anti-Jacobinism RACHEL HOPE CLEVES	410
Glimpses of the Other before Orientalism: The Muslim World in Early American Periodicals, 1785–1800 ROBERT BATTISTINI	446